MESSAGE from the Programme Director

The CUHK Faculty of Law PhD and MPhil in Laws Programmes offer two of the great opportunities in legal education. You will, if accepted, spend two to four years researching and writing about a topic you are passionate about while getting all the support you will need for such a major intellectual endeavor.

With our funding scheme, you will be supported generously enough that you can live comfortably without having to work for additional remuneration while you earn your PhD or MPhil in Laws. At the same time, you will have committed, research-active professors as supervisors; many of whom have some of the most distinguished research records in their respective fields of interest.

You will have fellow students from around the world to inspire you in what is a close-knit community with their own dedicated space in the Faculty. Our student-friendly support framework provides you with the formal guidance and encouragement which you will need. This will include multiple opportunities each year to present your work to other professors and peers, classroom support (with seminars on research and thesis writing) and also a team of two supervisors who will check in with you regularly in order to sustain your research momentum.

Your experience with our programmes will unfold in different stages. Following admission, our students have opportunities to apply for scholarships for research and study outside of Hong Kong, as well as access to some of the best library resources in Asia. After graduation our degree will empower you and give you the confidence to seek out careers in academia, legal practice, in the commercial world as well as in public service and the non-profit sector.

At CUHK Law, the administrative staff members take excellent individual care of each student. Our programmes provide each of our students with opportunities throughout the year to get together and offer support to one another. You will join a group of researchers who work closely together and with their professors. So let me say how pleased we are that you are considering CUHK Law. We hope you will be able to join us on a journey where you can think deeply about your chosen subject and make exciting discoveries at one of the great international law faculties.

Yours faithfully,

Professor Chin Leng Lim

Director, Research Postgraduate Programmes

Why Earn a Law PhD or MPhil Degree?

The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Laws is the most advanced research degree in law. The PhD is a research degree that can prepare a student for a career in fields as varied as teaching, research, consulting and law practice. Students are required to conduct thorough research on a novel topic and write a thesis of publishable quality that makes an original contribution to legal scholarship.

The Master of Philosophy (MPhil) in Laws is a degree for students who want to pursue advanced research, so as to become expert in an area of law or on a complex topic that can help open doors to similar career opportunities. Study in the MPhil Programme can also lead to admission to the PhD Programme, subject to the Faculty's evaluation of the student's academic performance during his or her MPhil study period.

Dissertations for both PhD and MPhil in Laws are written under the guidance of a member of the Faculty as supervisor, and in most cases another faculty member as co-supervisor, and assessed by an independent examination committee.

The CUHK Law Faculty has a limited number of places available for each of these Programmes each year. Placement is very competitive.

Conduct Your Research with Our Leading Scholars

Financial Support

The Hong Kong PhD Fellowship Scheme (HKPFS)

The HKPFS was created by Hong Kong Research Grants Council in 2009 to give Hong Kong universities world class financing for our most promising full-time PhD students. It awards a monthly stipend of HK$25,800 and an annual conference travel allowance of HK$12,900 for up to three years. If a Fellowship winner has a normative study period of four years, CUHK will provide financing at the same level during the fourth year. The CUHK Vice-Chancellor HKPFS Scholarship* offers Fellowship winners a tuition fee waiver for their whole normative study period and provides an award of HK$20,000 for lodging in the first year of study. CUHK guarantees on-campus accommodation during the normative study period to Fellowship winners who submit timely applications. The on-campus hostel fee will be waived in the first year of study. Competition for the HKPFS is intense, but we have had good success with the law candidates we have nominated to the selection committee. If you would like to know more about the HKPFS, please visit the following URL for further details:

<http://www.rgc.edu.hk/hkphd>

\ In lieu of the CUHK Vice-Chancellor HKPFS Scholarship, a tuition waiver will be provided to local HKPFS awardees during their normative study period under the Hong Kong Government's Tuition Waiver Scheme for Local Research Postgraduate Students.*

CUHK Postgraduate Studentships

Even if not awarded a Hong Kong PhD Fellowship, all candidates admitted to the Law Faculty's full-time PhD or MPhil Programme still receive a generous stipend during the normative research and writing period that, for the current academic year, amounts to HK$17,330 monthly. Funding for conferences and research-related travel is also available.

WHAT

Our Fulbright Scholar Says

As one of the recipients of the Fulbright-RGC Hong Kong Research Scholar Award (2018-2019), I am deeply indebted to the CUHK Law Faculty for the academic training. Having previously studied in China and the UK, I believed Hong Kong was the ideal place to unlock my full potential when I decided to pursue my doctorate. Enjoying the intellectual vibrancy offered by Asia's World City, I find myself thriving in an environment of high-level academic discussion and symposia. As one of the world's leading financial centres, Hong Kong is a perfect place to cultivate first-rate scholars and inspire cutting-edge research. This law faculty is also a great venue for interdisciplinary legal research. When I located my research interests in the field of law and finance, the Faculty offered essential support for me to earn a complementary MSc in Finance degree with concurrent registration at CUHK Business School. My supervisors, Professors Chao Xi and Dicky Tsang, are always offering insightful comments and generous support with full enthusiasm. With the support from the faculty and my supervisors, I have visited the Oxford Law School as a visiting scholar in 2017. The continued support I have from the Faculty was also indispensable in my success of applying for the Fulbright Scholarship, which generously sponsored my 10-month research sojourn with the Cornell Law School in 2019. At Cornell, I had the privilege to sharpen my research skills and fine tune my thesis for better at the final phase of my PhD. Indeed, the worldwide academic links CUHK Law Faculty has provides its research students with decent academic training to conduct research and to engage with the international academia. To sum it up, the learning and researching experience here at CUHK has been amazing and rewarding.

Support Framework for Research Postgraduate Students

In-House Roundtable Presentations

On an annual basis, students must present their works-in-progress in an in-house roundtable setting before faculty and other students. This gives them an opportunity to get comfortable presenting their research and honing it as well as providing them a forum for feedback.

Classroom Supervision

In the first part of their studies, students take a three-course sequence to help them with orienting to research postgraduate studies, conducting research and drafting a thesis. "Orientation to Research Postgraduate Studies" in the first term provides an overview of salient issues students will deal with during the period of their research, such as topic refinement, the student-supervisor relationship, and time management. "Research Methodologies" in the second term introduces students to different modes of conducting and organizing research and understanding research methodologies. And "Legal Academic Composition for Research Postgraduate Students" in the third term helps students prepare to write their thesis, including drafting an effective abstract, mastering paragraph structure and adopting the academic writing style. Each course provides students with feedback, via classroom exercises, external class assignments and an end-of-semester evaluation regarding the course materials.

Review Panels

Each year students meet with a review panel and their supervisors to assess their progress in the research and thesis writing processes.

Hong Kong Law Research Postgraduate Symposium

The Hong Kong Law Research Postgraduate Symposium annually brings together law or law-focused PhD, SJD and MPhil students from all universities in Hong Kong, providing them with the opportunity to present and engage in dialogues regarding their research. It provides a forum for such students to make and renew acquaintances as well as contribute toward a more collegial and intellectually vibrant law research environment in Hong Kong. The Symposium is bookended by Keynote Presentations delivered by distinguished Hong Kong law professors.

The Hong Kong Law Research Postgraduate Symposium is organized and sponsored by CUHK Law Faculty and takes place on an annual basis. Each CUHK Law research postgraduate student presents at the Symposium.

WHAT Our Students Say

PhD thesis on state succession in the case of a unified Korea: the legal effects on treaties and the rights of third states

Entering into the fourth year of my Ph.D. studies at CUHK Law, I believe I have gradually developed the necessary skills to help me become a better researcher and scholar in my field of expertise. This was mostly possible through the invaluable support and advice from my supervisors. CUHK Law also provides Ph.D. candidates with vast opportunities. Not only are candidates provided with opportunities within the campus with its diverse and engaging seminars held by the Faculty along with its numerous conferences, but they are also provided with opportunities globally. During my third year, I was thankfully given the great opportunity to visit the United States as a visiting scholar. Without the CUHK Law's support, I will not have been able to gain the insights I have gained during my stay in Washington, DC. Last but not least, the campus itself is a beautiful and quiet place to study as well as to enjoy the lovely greenery. Truly a wonderful place to enjoy the campus life. Studying at CUHK Law is definitely a place of opportunities and a place to grow as an academic scholar.

PhD thesis on third-party funding in investment arbitration

I joined The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) in September 2018. Before joining the PhD program, I completed an LLM degree at the London School of Economics and Political Science. I am a qualified lawyer in Turkey and a member of the Istanbul Bar Association. I have enjoyed my time in Hong Kong interacting with the distinguished faculty members from CUHK and extraordinary speakers from all around the world. I have had great support from both of my supervisors, Professors Julien Chaisse and Bryan Druzin. With their encouragement and support, I attended various conferences as a speaker this year, including the China International Business and Economic Law (CIBEL) Global Network Conference and the Young Scholars Workshop at the University of New South Wales, the 8th Conference of the Postgraduate and Early Professionals/Academics Network of the Society of International Economic Law (PEPA/SEL) 2019 at King's College London, and the Asian Law Institute Annual Conference at the National University of Singapore. I was also a finalist of the CIBEL Global Network PhD Scholar Prize in Sydney. Apart from relishing the vibrant academic life at CUHK, I have also enjoyed the opportunity to improve my language abilities. I started learning Putonghua and already completed four modules in my first year. CUHK boasts a multicultural environment in which students share their culture and learn from one another. In the coming academic year I will attend Stanford University as a Visiting Student Researcher. For those who are thinking of studying at CUHK, you would not regret it.

PhD thesis on investment dispute resolution along China's belt and road towards a new paradigm

I completed the LLM in International Economic Law in 2012-2013 and had the opportunity to observe first-hand the outstanding faculty and resources available at CUHK. Furthermore, I was particularly attracted to work with my supervisor during my PhD. I really like the city of Hong Kong and find it is a great hub from which to pursue my studies and also to improve my level of Mandarin. CUHK has a fantastic campus in Shatin and I am able to pursue many extra-curricular activities including taking Mandarin classes. I even had the opportunity to attend an intensive two-work Mandarin course in Mainland China with the full support of CUHK. Amongst the other research postgraduate students in the law faculty you will find a vibrant mix of intelligent and friendly people from different parts of the globe. The faculty staff is also welcoming and supportive. I remain fluid and open-minded as regards my career aspirations. Nevertheless, I wish to increase my expertise in Asian Investment Law & Dispute Resolution and my PhD at CUHK and becoming fluent in Mandarin will greatly assist in this.

PhD thesis on trends, dynamics and reform of international investment law in Africa

I am completing a PhD in international economic law at CUHK Law. My thesis focuses on examining trends and dynamics of foreign investor protection in Africa. Studying at CUHK has been very rewarding as I receive excellent supervision and support from my advisors, Professors Julien Chaisse and Bryan Mercurio. Overall, CUHK has provided unmatched opportunities for legal research, global exchange and scholarship. CUHK is a great place for studying international economic law. It is at the heart of a vibrant arbitration community, maintains close links with Hong Kong's legal community and is home to edge cutting legal research. In summer 2019, I interned for three months as an international arbitration trainee at the Hong Kong office of a Top 10 Global Law Firm and one of the largest law firms in the world. CUHK law staff provided administrative support during the internship application process.

PhD thesis on the whole is greater than the sum of its parts: cumulative disadvantages of defendants with mental disorders in Magistrates' Courts in Hong Kong

Researching about the criminal justice system in Hong Kong has been my aspiration, for which I am deeply grateful to CUHK Law for the academic training all along. I joined CUHK Law as a LLB student in 2011, when I began to be curious about issues of criminal justice system in Hong Kong. During my study in the MA (psychology) programme at CUHK, I was interested about the experience of individuals living with mental health issues in the criminal justice system that has later become my thesis topic. I receive excellent guidance and support from my supervisors, Professors Kevin Cheng and Christopher Gane. They are approachable and often provide constructive feedback to my study with full enthusiasms. CUHK Law also prepares us for our future academic career and supports us to extend our full potentials. The worldwide links it has enable us to engage with international academia. I had the opportunity to attend a training on qualitative methods in Utrecht University in 2017. Not only was I able to acquire new knowledge on research methodology, I had the chance to exchange with other research students who share similar interests in criminal justice system. As one of the recipients of the Fulbright-RGC Hong Kong Research Scholar Award (2019-2020), I will be visiting Arizona State University as a visiting research scholar in the coming academic year and I look forward to sharing my learning and research experience at CUHK Law with scholars and researchers there.
