ICSID Arbitration Annotated:

ICSID is the leading arbitration institution for the settlement of disputes between investors and states. ICSID is regularly scrutinized and often misunderstood. This presentation will survey some of the features that make ICSID unique as an institution and ICSID arbitration distinctive as a form of dispute resolution.

The Development of Global Administrative Law:

Global administrative law (GAL) is an emerging field of research especially led by the academics at the Institute of International Law and Justice of the NYU School of Law. This short lecture introduces the aim and the achievements of the GAL project. It also tries to explore the potential impact of GAL on the globalization of public law.

All are welcome!
