

CFRED and AIIFL Seminar:

GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT OF ISLAMIC BANKING AND BONDS (SUKUK)

by

Justice Datuk Dr. Haji Hamid Sultan bin Abu Backer

Judge of Court of Appeal Malaysia

19 December 2016, Monday, 12:30 – 1:30 p.m.
Room 723, 7/F Cheng Yu Tung Tower, The University of Hong Kong

The special lecture will introduce the concept of Islamic Finance facilities, inclusive of sukuk (Bonds). In the last four or five decades, Islamic trading concepts have been used as financing instrument to provide banking facilities in many parts of the world. Islamic Banking is by far and large an asset based transaction and in consequence is said to be more stable than conventional banking. For example, conventional Bonds do not have an underlying asset or security to support its transaction. However, the Islamic Bond or ‘Sukuk’ has an underlying asset to support the Bond and in consequence there has been a phenomenal growth in Sukuk Industry, not only in Malaysia, but also in other parts of the world, inclusive of United Kingdom. The study of Banking Laws will not be complete if students and jurists have not exposed themselves to the concept and practice of Islamic Banking.
